Make a Decision

The A.A. Program is the very life line by which an alcoholic can pull himself back to a normal position in life. Don't toy with it. This is a serious matter. Insanity or an early date with the undertaker is awaiting you if you are powerless over alcohol and your life has become unmanageable. Let go and make a decision to turn your will and your life over to that Power greater than ourselves. You will have an experience that will be a revelation to you.

The newcomer who is here for the first time and who is dubious of this plan of recovery should look around. You may see someone whom you have been drunk with—someone you have met in a hospital or even someone you have been with in jail. Many of these people are working the A.A. Program. It is working for them. You, too, can work it and it will work for you—if you sincerely want sobriety more than anything else in the world.

Many men have hit bottom, all the way down, and have made a comeback by the proper application of the 12 suggested Steps in A.A. Some of these people were so near going off the deep end into obliteration that any plan or program for recovery seemed humanly Springtime Oak, Exeter, CA Allen L impossible to them—yet by the Grace of God and the help of A.A. they are here.

The A.A. Program of recovery embodies sincerity of purpose, honesty and tolerance through practicing the principles outlined in the 12 suggested Steps in your daily life—24 hours at a time. You can and will slowly recover, regain self-respect, the respect of others and finally regain your rightful position in life, physically, mentally, socially, emotionally and spiritually.

-Bob C. Washington, D. C. AA Grapevine April 1948

Made a searching and fearless moral inventory of ourselves

In my first months attending AA meetings, the words that first popped out of the readings for me were "fearless and thorough." They seemed like goals in themselves, since most of my efforts over the previous few years were fearful and skimpy, half-hearted, as drinking took its inevitable toll on my life. When "fearless and thorough" became linked to "moral inventory" after months more of listening, the whole prospect of doing the steps at all became intimidating. I almost didn't stop drinking just so that I wouldn't have to arrive at Step Four.

And I might not have made it, except that many people encouraged me with this primary observation from their lives: that completing step four (and its companion, step five, the sharing of the lists of the inventory with another, open-eared, open-minded human being) would be liberating beyond my imagination. And after realizing that my lists couldn't be that much worse than other peoples' lists in the fellowship, I got brave enough to find a sponsor to begin.

'Twas Grace that brought me a sponsor competent in step work and patient enough to allow me to move at my own pace. We took our time through the first three steps, because, as she assured me, once I was safe and secure in Step Three, the fearfulness of Step Four would vanish. And it did.

I took an interminable amount of time, it seemed to me, going through my resentments and past relationships, my fears, but since I didn't lay down my bottle until I was 65, my time frame is pretty extended. There's more ground to cover than if I were 35, and my memory isn't as reliable as it once was. Earlier this spring, as we prepared to enter Step Six, I found some pockets that had not yet been emptied, and turned back to integrate those observations with what I'd found before. I doubt that I will ever be through with the inventory; thank God there's a place up ahead to do some of that work.

I think what I've found to be the most important thing about Step Four, however, is what I've learned about the relationships between resentments and anger and fear, quick judgments and slow-burning reactions. They're all part of each other. It's like a swamp: everything feeds on everything else, and the decomposition of your life is going on in the mud. Going through Step Four, as thoroughly and fearlessly as possible at that moment, is the way we give that swamp a name, and then step away onto firmer ground. In fact, I think Step Four could even be done partially and fearfully. It's the turning point, the place in sobriety where we begin to leave the past behind. Traveling mercies, friends.

-Trudy W

• Each group should be autonomous except in matters affecting other groups or AA as a whole.

The language of this tradition suggests we should express ourselves freely as it pertains to the conduct and operation of our groups/ meetings.

In a Grapevine article, November 1950, Bill W. wrote: "for ach of us knows, instinctively I think, that AA is not ours to do with as we please. We are but caretakers to preserve the spiritual quality of our fellowship"

In our 12 x 12 this tradition to two and only two storm signals—"a group ought not do anything which would greatly injure AA as a whole, nor ought it affiliate itself with anything or anybody else."

What would come to mind here is awareness—how many times have I used my freedom to impose on others without consideration? Do I stand on autonomy as a justification for doing or behaving in any manner I choose? Do I lose sight of the two sipmle tenants of this tradition by expanding it to my self-promoting ends?

I may lose sight of my "caretaker" responsibility any time I express my opinions about the operation of other groups. In doing so I violate the spririt of of Tradition 4. My Home Group conscience is something that I am a part of and grateful for. I would not accept someone acting contratry to our group conscience just because that is what they do in "their" group.

Most good ideas are simple. While I can't conceive of promoting myself at the expense of AA, getting along with my neighbors proves more difficult. My home group is a , no crosstalk, no chanting, no food fight meeting. If I choose to attenda meeting that allows all of that, it is not my place to try and changeit. Also, it is not my place to sit in the back, scowling, muttering, and complaining. The golden rule seems to apply here. Go along to get along. Try to be aware enough to recognize how the message of sobriety is being passed on, even if it is not my way.

If I try to go back to the spirit of this Tradition, as well as all the others, my participation and behavior can be simplified to something I can actually do: Protect AA's Steps & Traditions in their simplest forms. Try to be a caretaker of the Fellowship in all its forms and remember it is not a coincidence that Tradition 4 is where I find Rule 62: "don't take myself too damn seriously."

Women In Unity #2 June 21,22,23, 2019

The cavalier ocean front resort is in San Simeon, CA. It is a 4-star hotel located off highway 1. It is a peaceful location right on the ocean with beach access. Its is a wonderful place to relax while joining in fellowship through sisterhood.

Wake up in the morning, grab a cup of coffee while enjoying the beautiful ocean view and soft breezes. Before heading out for a day of interesting meetings and educational panels or just a conversation with the other women in the fellowship.

In the evening as the day winds down meet up with friends old and new for a good meal and lively conversation.

To conclude your day at the hotels outdoor fire pit watching the sun set sets over the ocean and reflects at us it's not hard to remember who is in charge here. Gazing at stars and listening to the music of the ocean waves crashing on the rocks below.

Cambria is only 15 minutes away so you could take some time during the break to explore or shop. We are hoping that you will come and enjoy the views and the rewards of sisterhood.

Drinkin with me brothers

An Irishman walks into a bar in Dublin, orders three pints of Guinness and sits in the back of the room, drinking a sip out of each one in turn.

When he finishes them, he comes back to the bar and orders three more.

The bartender approaches and tells him, "You know, a pint goes flat after I draw it, and it would taste better if you bought one at a time."

The Irishman replies, Well, you see, I have two brothers.

One is in America, the other is in Australia, and I'm in Dublin.

When we all left home, we promised that we'd drink this way to remember the days we drank together. So I drink one for each o'me brothers and one for me self."

The bartender admits that this is a nice custom, and leaves it there.

The Irishman becomes a regular in the bar, and always drinks the same way: He orders three pints and drinks them in turn.

One day, he comes in and orders two pints. All the other regulars take notice and fall silent. When he comes back to the bar for the second round, the bartender says, "I don't want to intrude on your grief, but I wanted to offer my condolences on your loss." The Irishman looks quite puzzled for a moment, then a light dawns and he laughs.

"Oh, no, me brothers are just fine," he explains, "It's just that me wife made me quit drinking.
